CAPTAIN W. C. H. Hastings, Assistant Harbour Master, called in to see Mr. Wodehouse at the maison de justice this morning, respecting the mooring of the Hongkong Marina hotel which he desired should be "made fast" at the place, he had indicated sometime ago. He did not press for a fine to be imposed on the company, so the whole thing was fixed up by the defendants contributing one Mexican to H. M's Exchequer.

A CORRESPONDENT writes :- "It may interest the community to know the view taken by the learned Queen's Counsel after the Chief Justice commenced to sum up in the late conspiracy trial. Mr. Francis left the court before the jury retired, and meeting a friend outside the court was naked how the case would end. "Certain acquittal " was the reply, and to several other inquiries he is said to have returned the same answer.". We also happen to know that no one was more surprised than the Counsel himself, at the actual verdict.

An application was made at the Supreme Court to-day to Sir James Russell, Chief Justice, by Mr. Leach, instructed by Mr. Wilkinson, for a writs of kabeas corpus and certiorari in connection with a Chinaman named Su Fei Wun who was arrested here on the 6th ultime by virtue of a warrant issued at the instance of the Chinese Government, who sileged that he had committed murder and burglary near Canton. Several affidavits were filed setting forth the proceedings at the Magistracy were irregular and that the evidence there taken amounted to no evidence at all. Further, that the magistrate, himself, had expressed grave doubts as the correctness of the course he took in committing the prisoner to gaol for a period of 15 days, pending the direction of His Excellency the Governor in respect to his rendition. His lordship in granting the application said he was always in favour of giving every latitude where the liberty of the subject was concerned, but was airaid that the granting of writs would be of little value in the premises. The writs would be returnable on Monday, the 1st proxime.

THE name of "General" Booth of the Salvation Army is not wont to conjure with it literature, but as a moral reformer, to whom respect as well as sympathy has been freely extended of late, he is satisfied to be heard. And heard he will be. His book on "Darkest England" is not a fanatical diatribe, bristling with Hallelujah's and amens, but a calm and well-reasoned, albeit somewhat chimerical, scheme for helping the three million human beings he estimates as enslaved by poverty. ignorance, and crime. The "General's" plan is a comprehensive one, and whatever its merits | privilege of replying to him through the columns may be practically, he is at anyrate willing enough to start about its realisation. IT is certainly very desirable, says the Detroit Free Press, that the American who contemplates murder should go to Canada to commit the crime. This course saves any one of the United States the trouble and expense of a trial, and gives reasonable assurance that the criminal will be promptly punished. The latest exemplification of this praiseworthy promptitude is in the case Mr. Day, of Rochester, who will be hanged in December next for having pushed his wife over the high bank of the Ningar River, on the Canadian side. His arrest, trial, conviction and sentence occupied less time than would have been required to obtain a jury in a case of like importance on this side of the line.

THE United States Secretary of the Navy has just decided, says The Times, upon the orders. for three additional battleships and a protected crulser for the American Navy: Four firms competed, and the Secretary has notified Messrs. W. E. Cramp and Sons, Philadelphia, of the award to them of the contract for the construction of two coast-line battleships for $3,020,000 each, and the contract for the triple-screw protected cruiser at $2,725,000. The Union Iron Works, San Francisco, have also been informed of the award to them of the contract for the construction of one of the battleships at $3,180,000, the amount of the Cramp tender for one vessel. Their tender was $3,240,000, and the award is consequently $60,000 less. Should they decline to accept this figure then the contract for the four vessels will go to the Cramps. The contract given to the Philadelphia firm is the largest ever given to a single yard in the United States, the amount aggregating $8,765,000. The vessels are to be affoat by 1893. When finished the United States will possess a modern navy consisting of 15 announced vessels five of which will be of the battleship type, and 31 unarmoured steel vessels-total, 46 first-class ships of the latest construction, material, and armament.

A VERY successful test of the arc system of street lighting was made by the Electric Light Company last night. The lamps shed a powerful steady light which would have done credit to many an old established light-works at home, There was an entire absence of the jerk and flicker which generally accompanies the ignition of new lamps, indicating unsteady power at the dynamo, which speaks well for the very careful manner in which the various parts of the complicated machinery, lamps and wires have been set up. On Monday next the Company wil commence lighting the streets regularly, and when a few of the thick branches of trees are thinned out we are sure that the new light wil be deservedly appreciated by the general public The incendescent system is being completed as fast as possible, and we have no doubt but that this excellent system of indoor lighting will largely taken advantage of here, as elsewhere The Company have in stock a splendid lot of handsome fittings for all kinds for house and office use, and it is said that the Hon, C. P. Chater and Mr. Mody are now having their houses fitted with ornamental burners which for elegance and perfection of light, will not be surpassed in any part of the world.

THE racing to New York from the States of Europe and from Canada, in order to avoid, for the last time, the increased rate of taxation to be imposed in accordance with the McKinley Tariff Bill, has led to the unparalleled receipt of £6,000,000 in one week as Customs dues at New York. The arrival of the Etruria within one minute of midnight on October 4th was a close shave for escaping from the rigours of the McKinley Bill, and the narrow squeak of Captain Hains will no doubt be recorded amongst the many other extraordinary things in the annals of the Cunard Line. The stocks imported into the United States within the las few days will indirectly prevent the effects of th new Bill from being felt for some time, and meanwhile some just and prudent steps may be taken in the way of reciprocity treaties. As natural result of the increased importation duties, the surtaxed articles must sugmen in price. And then come the vital questions upon which the success of the McKinley Bill must ultimately depend :-- Who will: the extra price? Who will pay the additiona Custom House officers? And who will ultimate. suffer in the presence of abundance? The consumer in each case will be the victim, as h has ever been the victim of exaggerated -Protectionism. After a time, should the American Tariff Bill prove a failure, another question may arise for the consideration of philanthropists and that question would be the advisability of demolishing all Custom House barriers and establishing a universal system of Free-trade.-Rangoon Times Cor.

I'We do not secessarily endorse the opinious expressed by Correspondents in this column L. THE SUNDAY LABOUR QUESTION:

To the Entrop of the "Hongkong Telegrape." SIR,-In the issue of your evening contemporary of the 24th inst. a letter appears from a correspondent who assumes the nom de plume of "Sul Jure," dealing with the much discussed question of Sunday labor in this colony. The subject is one of great interest and I beg the of your widely-read journal.

He further states that there are "only two

There are few shore men that have half the responsibility of an officer on board ship, for 12 hours out of 24. He has Nothing material are often called out of their beds to attend to occurred in the fourth round, but in the fifth both their duties. In port they not only have have to perform severe manual labor themselves. often working many hours into the night. These men are in a position where the slightest carelessness might either blow the whole ship to pieces, or at the least, cost their owners thousands of dollars. I ask is it right to grudge these men their Sunday rest when they do happen to be in port on the Sahbath of the"Lord our God." Every one must know that while cargo is being worked the engineers have to be in attendance on the steam apparatus and machinery.

I have heard it pointed out that at home the tramways and railways run on Sundays; but that form of labor is minimized as much as possible, passengers and mails only being carried. Further, it is not done for private gain, as cargo work on board ship is, but to meet the public convenience.

It is said that the inconvenience of suspending all labor in this port on Sunday is intensified by the fact that this is "not a terminal port, Surely if all vessels alike were compelled to stop work on the Sabbath it would not affect any particular interests, as one day more or less cannot affect imperishable cargo, such as oceanboats usually carry.

Colombo, too, is not a "terminal port," yet the Port Charges for Sunday work have practically put an end to moral slavery there.

To conclude, I must agree with "Sui Jore" that, not only would it be no loss, but, I believe, t would be a positive gain to all shipowners were they to avoid all Sunday labor. "Let us de unto others, as we would they should do unto us."

Thanking you in anticipation for according space to this.

Corbett, the hon, secretary of the Sydney Amateur Gymnastic Club, for Jackson, while Messrs. Hebir and Nixon were elected to to act as timekeepers. As the men stood up for the first round, Goddard (in white trunks and brown (stocking) looked in great heart-his weight was 13st-while Jackson, who stood over him, was about 14st. and he was attired in red stockings and white drawers, and looked in anything but condition. From the start Goddard had stated that it was his intention to rush in and fight for the body. This he did; but in the first part of the round he was very much inclined to bang the "darkey" about the head, but taking the advice of his friends he left it alone. In the middle of the second round Goddard was sent down, and took his losecs. Commencing the third round Jackson's. want of condition was seen, as he was in a provery willingly in this round, and rushing in, met was split in consequence. The collision sent him down. Getting up he again rushed, and in a few seconds after was again sent to the floor, after which he took his full to secs. Had Jackson been in anything like form-he would have settled the matter in this round, as Goddard spun right found on the ropes from the effect of missing one of his wild windmill blows; and had Jackson The Engineers also, though they only keep | been on the siert he could have then sailed fell. Goddard was first up, and gave his hand the superintendence of their subordinates, but | to Jackson to assist him to rise, which act, as may be supposed, brought down the house. In the sixth round Jackson got in one or two very telling blows. In the seventh round Jackson also visited with the left, and in one of his customary rushes Goddard again set his eye a bleeding by running up against Jackson's shoulder, and towards the close of the round a claim of foul was. made by the Goddard people, but the man himself would not insist on it. The last round was noted for hard punching, but nothing of note was done, and so it ended. One judge was in favor of one man, and the other the opposite, while the referee gave a draw. This decision caused no end of comment. Each man's followers thought he should have been judged the victor. The decision to my thinking was a happy one. Science there was none, and it was without doubt one of the greatest failures ever seen . from a scientific point of view. Goddurd was always rushing in, and seeing that he was knocked down more then once his claim to the £400, which was divided between the combatants on Tuesday, was small indeed. Both men were out at the Caulfield races on Tuesday, Jackson looked as spry as a 'a-year-old, the only punishment noticeable being a little mark under the right eye. Goddard on the other hand showed punish. ment. It is expected that there will be another match between the pair. If so, no doubt Jackson will have more than a fortnight's training, and probably a very different tale will then be told. As regards condition Jackson was simply not fit to box three fast rounds, and he was clever to get so well out of the trouble.

THE OVERLAND TRADE BETWEEN RUSSIA AND CHINA.

An interesting and important report from the British Embassy at St. Petersburg has just been issued by the Foreign Office. It deals with the overland trade between Russia and China, which for many years past has been the object of much solicitude on the part of the Russian authorities. "pow" between Vendetta and Silver Bill-11 The recent decline of this trade has excited uneasiness in Russia. In 1869, after the opening had a bit the best of Witchcraft and covered the of the Suz Canal, the decrease first became apparent. The Kiakhta merchants, who are the intermediaries in the trade, say that the Canal has, in fact, only benefited the trade of a few maritime States, who have pushed their trade to the very north of China to the detriment of Russian wares. In 1880 there was a considerable decline as compared with previous years. .The total value of the goods exported to China, vid Kinkhia, was only about 3,000,000 roubles, and of precious metals about 1,000,000 roubles. The value of Russian goods alone was only 1,085,140 roubles, or x-30th of their value in 1869. In 1885 the total was half as much again as in 1889, and Russian goods declined from 1,855,573 roubles in 1885 to 1,085,144 roubles in 1889. The Russian exports are classified as food products, raw and half-manufactured products, manufactures, and furs, and in all four categories, except raw and half-manufactured products, there is a serious decrease since 1885. and since 1887 there has been a decrease under this heading. The chief " raw and half-manufactured products" are antelope and roebuck horns, and musk deer. Manufactured goods in 1880 were only a third in value of those exported the and butter, From China also camo a small and squirrel tails came from Tiber, The overland tea trade of China with Russia in 1880 was other points of the Russo-Chinese frontier is of Russia is that in furs, which are sold in China after being cured in Russia; for the Chinese, like Chinese exports to Russia exceed those of Russia

KENTUCKY-A NICE PLACE TO LIVE IN.

A despatch from Pikeville (Kentucky), August 8, says :- The Kentucky Mountains in this neighborhood have been practically controlled for many years by outlaws, illegal distillers, and desperadoes, and little attempt has been made to put down the lawlessness that constantly prevails in this section of the State. The neighborhood has been periodically visited by small bodies of itinerant militiamen, whose efforts to preserve the peace, have been more ludicrous than effective. Within the last five years more than 200 murders have been committed, and not a single person has been arrested. In Perry County, which is the centre of disorder, there is not a church, school or telegraph office. The outlaws burned the court-house two years ago, and no attempt has since been made to hold court in the county until Saturday last, when Circuit Judge Lilly, guarded by several companies of militia, arrived in the town of Harard, the county seat, and held Court in a large tent which had been erected for that purpose. A large crowd collected, and several hundred out-laws. came in from the mountains, and lounged about on the outskirts of the lown. With great difficulty the judge 'induced 16 citizens to act as a grand jury. In his "charge" he said that the county was 70 years old, and while only one man had been convicted of murder and sentenced to a short term in the penitentiary it was on record that over 500 murders had been committed. He added :- "I have missed several terms because I was satisfied that a court could not be held. My life has been threatened, and I have had every reason to expect assassination, but I have determined to do my duty." The jury consented to indict several persons for horse-stealing, but hankly admitted that they were afraid to indict a number of the outlaws charged with murder. So complete was the terrorism that Judge Lilly was obliged to adjourn the court until Tuesday of this week. Meanwhile the militia have been attempting to make arrests, thus far without success, and serious trouble is feared,
